

Cornice fall triggered a soft slab avalanche in the Spanish Peaks on the afternoon of 2/13/2020.

From email: "100 feet wide, slid the new snow layer maybe 2-3 feet deep, made a pretty good runnel, and went close to full path , so it must have entrained a decent amount of snow to travel that far ..."

Photo: R. Hollow

Advisory Region

Northern Madison Longitude -111.32W Latitude 45.30N Avalanche Details: Cornice fall triggered soft slab slab in Spanish Peaks Northern Madison, 2020-02-15